Creativity and Commitment

IN PREPARING OUR SOULS FOR THE HOLIDAYS AND THE YEAR AHEAD, it is worth reflecting on the two central themes that shape the Days of Awe: creativity and commitment.

Rosh Hashanah is all about creativity. As George Bernard Shaw wrote, "Life isn't about finding yourself. Life is about creating yourself." On Rosh Hashanah we marvel at God's creation, embracing our own creativity as human beings fashioned in the divine image. We think of ourselves as supple clay, able to be refashioned every year. We taste new fruits, set new goals, and anticipate a year ahead full of new possibilities.

Yom Kippur is all about commitment.

First we turn inward to admit to all the vows of the past year that we have broken.

We have fallen short of promises we made to our loved ones, our God and ourselves. We know we should have done better. Imperfect as we are, our confessions serve to strengthen our resolve for the year ahead. On Yom Kippur we transcend our natural inclinations and grant forgiveness to those seeking our pardon with sincerity. Just as we ask that God's commitment to us not be eclipsed by our own flaws, so we call on ourselves to extend the same compassion to others.

The themes of creativity and commitment frame not only our personal spiritual journeys this holiday season, but also our communal mission for the year ahead. The vitality of our synagogue is contingent on long-term commitments that insist on new answers to old problems. Our dedication to education, to congregational music, to Israel and other concerns remains constant, even as we pilot new ideas to meet the needs of an ever-changing landscape. I hope that in the year ahead, you will see countless such examples of creative approaches to long-term concerns.

Most of all, I wish each and every one of you a sweet year of health and happiness. May this be a year of blessing for the Jewish people and all of humanity.

I wish each and every one of you a sweet year of health and happiness.

N BEHALF OF ALL THE OFFICERS AND TRUSTEES OF PARK AVENUE
SYNAGOGUE, I wish each of you a happy and healthy year in 5773.

As you will see from perusing this issue of the Bulletin and the enclosed Program Calendar, we have an extraordinary line-up of lectures, classes, concerts and opportunities for spiritual engagement for members of all ages and interests. I hope you will join us as often as you can, whether listening to a world class speaker or taking an entire course. I encourage you to refresh your soul at our weekly musical Kabbalat Shabbat services and to connect with the community at daily minyan. I hope you will participate in mitzvah projects that support our local community as well as a safe, secure, independent, democratic state of Israel. I invite you to join a committee or become active in one of our arms, and to make new friends while you help bring about programming that matters to you. Whether you come to Park Avenue Synagogue occasionally or daily, I trust you will experience pride and joy whenever you enter the building, as I do.

I look forward to seeing you at High Holy Day services and throughout the year as our congregation comes together for worship, study, social and cultural events and lifecycle celebrations.

L'shanah tovah, may we all be written and sealed for a good new year!

Have No Fear

RABBI STEVEN I. REIN

THE WORDS OF PSALM 27 REVERBERATE in our souls as we recite them at the conclusion of every service from Rosh Hodesh Elul until the end of Sukkot. While this is the season of introspection and asking forgiveness, the psalm is not about self-abasement; it is not a confession of sin or an admission of guilt. What then is it? Psalm 27 is a tender expression of trust, an expression of deep yearning. It is a prayer of emotional and spiritual vulnerability. What are the fears that turn us to God for comfort? Much of the time, it is the worries that affect us individually, not the fear of natural disasters, war and poverty, but the fear of being alone, feeling foolish, the fear of making a mistake, of not being liked, of being unlovable.

How might we moderate our fears if we internalize the opening line of this psalm? We might think about how God has been our “help” and our “light” – helping us become aware of difficult realities that we might not have wanted to see or might not have been able to see and then helping us not fall apart when, finally, we face them. Perhaps God has been our “light” through the mitzvot: Shabbat and holiday candles illuminating our home and souls; a friendly face whose gentle smile came at a time of great emotional need; or sparks of wisdom acquired through reading, study, and thoughtful conversations with others.

As a synagogue, we seek to embody God’s eternal light. With renewed opportunities for learning and spiritual prayer, we strive to elevate and illuminate the lives of all those who place their trust in this community. Most importantly, we strive to be a kehillat hesed – a caring community – a place where our individual and communal embrace provides a source of strength to overcome life’s fears. What are the fears that you yearn to be freed from this year? What light can you envision God and this community casting upon your life? As the psalmist concludes: Look to the Lord; be strong and of good courage! O look to the Lord!

Jodi, Ari, Ilan, and I wish you and yours a Shanah tovah u-metukah!

“The Lord is my light and my help, whom should I fear?
The Lord is my source of strength, who can frighten me?”

JOSHUA WEINFELD
September 8
Parashat Ki Tava
Josh began his education in the Orange Room of the PASECC and has continued his Jewish studies in the Congregational School. Now in 8th grade at Wagner Junior High School, Josh is a diligent student whose favorite subject is math.

Josh plays snare drum, drum set, tympani, and marimba and improvises on Garage Band. He plays percussion in his school band, and also performed with the Manhattan Borough Wide Band at Carnegie Hall last year.

An enthusiastic athlete, Josh plays basketball, baseball, and soccer for the Wagner school teams. He also enjoys playing pick up games in the park. Josh spends summers at Camp Kennybrook, which is like a second home to him.

Josh is easy-going and enjoys spending time with friends and family. He is a loving and patient older brother to his sister Rebecca and a wonderful role model for her.

Josh wishes to thank his family, the clergy, and especially his tutor Michael Wolk for helping him to prepare for this day. He looks forward to culminating this milestone by traveling to Israel in December with his family on the PAS Bnei Mitzvah trip.

EMILY ABELOW
September 8
Parashat Ki Tava
Emily is thrilled and honored to celebrate her Bat Mitzvah at Park Avenue Synagogue. She has attended the Congregational School since she was in 5th grade, when her family moved from another Conservative synagogue to PAS. Her Jewish education extends well beyond the walls of PAS. She has attended Ramah camps since she was six years old, starting at Ramah Nyack and graduating to overnight camp in 2008. She has just completed her fifth wonderful summer at Ramah Berkshires and looks forward to many more!

Emily is also well-traveled in Israel, having visited with her family twice in the last few years. She had the great thrill of reading Torah on Masada, where she marked her becoming Bat Mitzvah alongside her cousin Joshua.

Emily attends the Lab School for Collaborative Studies and is an athlete and avid sports fan. She plays soccer, basketball and softball in school, recreational and travel leagues. Emily is a great role model to her two younger sisters. Every day she demonstrates how dedication, hard work and perseverance lead to success.

Emily's family is extremely proud of her accomplishments and very grateful to the clergy and staff at PAS for making this day possible.

JACK ADAM SILVER
September 15
Parashat Nitzavim
Jack Adam is an 8th grader at Riverdale Country School who loves everything about sports, especially baseball, basketball, football and Ohio State. He also enjoys traveling with his family, laughing with his brothers Harrison and Justin, playing guitar and listening to music. He looks forward to summers in Maine at Camp Cedar.

Jack is named for his grandmother and his mother's cousin, Adam Kreiger, who died at age 20. Jack has learned how Adam lived life to the fullest in the face of the greatest obstacles. For his mitzvah project, Jack is working with and supporting the Adam Kreiger Fund to help young people gain a zest for life and a determination to overcome anything.

Jack's education started in the Purple Room of the PASECC. Since Gan, he has been a student at the Congregational School. PAS is a special place for him and his family as his grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins are all active members of this community. Jack would like to thank his family and friends and all his PAS teachers and clergy for helping him to prepare for his Bar Mitzvah, with a special thank you to Cantor Kidron.

WOMEN'S NETWORK

Sparkling Connections

The symbol of the new Women's Network is based on one of the pictographs in the stained glass windows that line the synagogue lobby and the Appleman Chapel, which were designed by the abstract expressionist artist Alfred Gottlieb. Gottlieb used the motif of spokes with knobs on the end to represent lamps and light. The symbol suggests the sparks of connection and the warmth of community which the PAS Women's Network offers to every woman in the congregation. To learn more about the windows, visit <http://pasyn.org/resources/about-adolph-gottlieb-stained-glass-windows>.

Introducing Caryn Roman, Director of Youth Engagement

CARYN ROMAN JOINED the PAS full-time staff in June as Director of Youth Engagement, a new position encompassing the Rabbi Judah Nadich High School program and all experiential activities for youth in grades 3-12. Caryn brings more than a decade of experience in informal and experiential Jewish youth education, having served in part- and full-time roles in the Union for Reform Judaism's (URJ) youth programs from 2000-2010.

“Caryn will take a holistic approach to engaging youth at PAS,” explains Rabbi Neil Zuckerman. “Our aim is to create a continuum of experiential Jewish programming to complement pre-Bnei Mitzvah learners’ Congregational School or day school experiences, and to offer relevant social, educational, and leadership development opportunities for post-Bnei Mitzvah young adults.”

Caryn originally hails from the Detroit area, where her multi-branched family has deep personal and professional roots in the Jewish community. Growing up in the URJ’s youth group and camp programs, she developed from a young age a love of Jewish music, Torah lishma (Torah study for its own sake), and community-building. She now carries these passions into her work with teens.

A graduate of New York University’s Wagner School of Public Service, Caryn holds a master’s degree in nonprofit management, as well as a bachelor’s degree in communications from Boston University.

Young Family High Holiday Services

WE ARE EXCITED TO BEGIN THE NEW YEAR OF 5773 with our families who have children under six years old. To accommodate everyone, we will have multiple family services on Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur, with some services being held at a location across the street from the synagogue. Families have been assigned to the different services, taking into consideration the number of people in each family and the age of the children. Each family will receive a "post card ticket" in the mail for the family service to which they have been assigned.

If you are a new member of PAS and you have never participated in one of our programs for families with young children, please contact Matt Check, Director of Young Family Education, to make certain that you have been assigned to a family service. In any case, if your family does not receive a "post card ticket" in the mail within two days of receiving your regular synagogue High Holiday tickets, or if you have any questions about High Holidays at PAS for families with young children, please feel free to contact Matt.

For additional descriptions, fees and registration instructions for all YFE programming, please see the Fall Program Calendar, pages 20-22, or visit pasyn.org/Young Family Education.
